The Social World.

ONE THING AND ANOTHER WHICH SOCIETY PEOPLE LIKE TO TALK ABOUT.

HE number of people who are met at the Montana increases from day to day, and one pleasant feation of ladies among the permanent guests of the hotel is gradually growing greater. One evening of last week found a notable company of representative men at Mr. Daly's table in the dining room of the Montana, the company including J. B. Haggin, William Keyser and R. B. Keyser of Baltimore, and J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad. quisitive people saw in this meeting all orts of new railroad projects interesting to Anaconda and half the town engaged in gossip, but whether there was any warrant for it all, the society column of the STANDARD does not undertake to

BUTTE'S SOCIAL LIFE.

Matters of Personal Mention Which the Past Week Suggests. BUTTE, Nov. 14.-Those who are interested in the local dramatic club say that the new organization has an assured existence and that it will cut a figure in the world during the winter. The membership of the club grows and all who be long are getting ready for serious work. The operatic club is also to be heard from before long, so its active members announce. There is a perceptible in-crease in the amount of musical talent in Butte, both vocal and instrumental, most of those who are gifted in music are willing to help in organized movements like those which the club represents and creditable performances may be expected.
